BURGESS'S ESSENCE OF ANCHOVIES.

BURGESS's ESSENCE OF ANCHOVIES.

No. 107, Strand, Corner of Savoy Steps, London.

THE great reputation which Mr BURGESS has gained by his ESSENCE of ANCHOVIES, (he being the inventor of it,) has induced many persons to give the same name to an Article entirely different, which is not only vended in E-DINBURGH, but by persons who go to the principal towns in Scotland to solicit orders of tradefmen and inkeepers, who, in consequence, are often served with a spurious fort, of an inferior quality; which is not only an imposition, but a great disappointment to Families who purchase it with a view of having good Sauce with their Fish. appointment to Famines good Sauce with their Fish.

W. B.—None are his genuine but what have these words:—
"Burges's Original and Superior Essence of Anchovies, No.

107, Strand, Corner of Savoy Steps, London."

J. Burgers most respectfully informs the Nobility, and Families in general resident in Scotland, he has had frequent complaints, that a person has been vending an article as his genuine Essence of Anchovies, to the great disappointment of Families; and he begs leave to assure them, he has not sent any to be fold by his appointment since July 1794, having revoked all such authority.

WHITEHEAD's ESSENCE OF MUSTARD.

To Mr Dickson, Druggis, Dumfries.

On the 7th of January latt, I was attacked with a severe sheumatism, excessive pain and swelling of all my joints, which confined me to my bed three weeks, experiencing no relief from a variety of medicines prescribed by a medical gentleman. I was advised by a friend to try WHITEHEAD's ESSENCE of MUSTARD, which I did, and in two days was so far recovered, that I could walk above a quarger of a mile, and by continuing it a little longer, I regained my former health and strength. "That this House, understanding it to be a matter of public potoriety, that the fystem of coercion has been enforced in Ireland with a rigour shocking to humanity; and particularly that fcourges and other tormanity; and particularly that leoniges and other tor-tures have been employed for the purpose of extorting confessions, a practice justly held in abhorrence in e-very civilized part of the world; and that houses and buildings have been set tire to; a mode of punishment that can lead only to the most persicious consequences, that can lead only to the most pernicious consequences, and that seldom or ever falls on the guilty, but on the contrary, on the landlord, the wise and children of the criminals; who, however iniquitous the husband or father, ought always to be spared and protected; is of opinion, that an immediate stop should be put to a practice so disgraceful to the British name; and that our best hopes of restoring tranquillity to Ireland, must arise from a change of system as far as depends on the Executive Government, together with a removal from Executive Government, together with a removal from their stations, of those persons by whose advice these atrocities have been perpetrated, and with regard to whom the afflicted people of Ireland can feel no fenti-ments but those of resentment and terror."

After a debate, which lasted till ten o'clock,in which Lord HOLLAND and other Noblemen supported the motion: Lords GRENVILLE, SPENCER, and the Bishop of Rochester, opposed it, the House divided, Contents 17—Poxies 3—Total 20

PROROGATION OF PARLIAMENT.

This morning the Royal Family came to town from Windfor; his Majefty, attended by the Master of the Horse, and the great officers of State, proceeded soon after two o'clock from St James's Palace to the House of Peers, when the Commons being feut for, his Ma-jefty closed the present Session of Parliament with the following most gracious speech from the throne:—

MY LORDS AND GENTLEMEN, By the measures adopted during the present Sef-tion, you have amply fulfilled the folern and unanimous nce which I received from you at the commence-

The example of your firmpels and constancy has been applauded and followed by my subjects of every rank and condition in life-a fpirit of voluntary and ardent exertion diffused through every part of the king-dom has ftrengthened and confirmed our internal security, the fame fentiments have continued to animate my troops of every description; and my fleets have met the menaces of invasion by blocking up all our enemies in

"GENTLEMEN OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS, " The extensive and equitable scheme of contribution by which fo large a share of our expences will be defrayed within the year, has defeated the expectations of those who had vainly hoped to exhault our means, and to destroy our public credit. You have been enabled to avail yourfelves of your refources from a commerce encreafed in extent and vigour, notwithstanding the dif-ficulties of war, and have had the singular fatisfaction of deriving, at the fame moment, large additional aid from individual exertion, of unexampled zeal, liberality, and patriotifm. " MY LORDS AND GENTLEMEN.

"The deligns of the difaffected, carried on in concert with our inveterate enemies, have been unremittingly purfued, but have been happily and effectually counacted in this kingdom by the general loyalty of my bjects.

In Ireland they have broken out into the most criminal acts of open rebellion. Every effort has been employed on my part to subdue this dangerous spirit, which is equally hostile to the interests and safety of every part of the British empire. I cannot too strongly commend the unshaken fidelity and valour of my regular, fencible, and militia troops in Ireland; and that determined spirit, with which my yeomanry and volunteer forces of that kingdom have stood forward in the defence of the lives and properties of their fellow-fub-jects, and in support of the lawful government.

"The striking and honourable proof of alacrity and public spirit, which so many of my fencible and militia regiments in this kingdom have manifested on this occasion, has already received the fullest testimony of the approbation of Parliament.

This conduct, personally so honourable to the in dividuals, affords the strongest pledge both of the military ardour, which actuates this valuable part of our national defence, and of their affectionate concern for the fafety and happiness of Ireland, which are effential ly connected with the general interests of the British empire.

The LORD CHANCELLOR then, by his Majesty's command, prorogued the Parliament in the usual form.

The debate of Wednesday in the House of Lords was of a most warm description. We cannot state all the particulars which have come to our knowledges-The language of the Duke of Bedford was of fuch a nature, that, on the motion of Lord Grenville, his words were ordered to be taken down.

The Speaker of the House of Commons, nied by Mr Pitt, left town last night for Mr Dundas's house at Wimbleton.

A new office is fitting at Wapping New Stairs, to be under the direction of Patrick Colquhoun, Esq. one of the Police Magistrates of Queen Square, Westminster, sanctioned by the corporation of Trinity-House, for the purpose of being a central place to hire lumpers to un-load all ships which come into the river; their names are to be enrolled, and the men to be fworn into office, and empowered to feize all illegal property attempted to be run on shore, and no other people to be employed in that fervice. They are all to receive their wages at the office, and complaints of a felonious nature and violation of the bum-boats act to be cognizable as at the other offices.

A proclamation was yesterday issued, offering 1000l. eward for the apprehension of Bagenal Harvey, the late leader of the rebels at Wexford. He is represented as a mean-looking thin man, about five feet fix inches high, and as having made his escape from the rebels, and landed at the port of St David's, in Wales.

The evacuation of St Domingo, every circumstance considered, was a measure dictated by sound prudence.

The most unfortunate circumstance in the Irish rebellion is, that we do not yet know what the rebels want. In 1715 and 1745, we knew what the object was—the restoration of the Stuart family. The queftion was then plain, and each man knew what he fighting for. Here we know only that a mob has rifen, so desperate in its purposes, and extensive in its magnitude, as to be denominated a rebellion; but why they have rifen, what their demands are, and wherewithal they will be content, no one knows or pretends to know. -We do indeed hear of Liberty.-Alas! we have heard of nothing elfe for the last feven or eight years; and, what is the consequence?—The unsettling of almost all the States of Europe, without the settling of any thing, and a feries of crimes, fuch as never were produced in the same space of time under any one pre-

Until the rebellion in Ireland is quelled, and perfect tranquillity restored, we cannot expect to have a faithful history of what has happened. The horrors committed in that country are beyond all belief, and could not be credited if they were not fo well attested. The Irish rebellion has added another proof, if further example were necessary, that the spirit of revolution knows of no diffinction; and that the virtues of the best men are no better protection to them than the vices of the bad.

Mifs Keating, whom different prints have not only put at the head of a detachment of Irish rebels, but whom they have made to affaffinate feveral of the King's troops with her own hand, has, it appears, ever fince these lamentable disturbances have broken out in Wexford, been retired under the protection of two of her aunts, who reside in Dublin, from whence she has never fince been absent for a moment. The perturbed spirit of Napper Tandy, which has produced fo much confusion in his native country, will most probably be configued to eternal rest by the fiat of the French Directory. To entreat the Great Nation

Dispatches were on Thursday received from Admiral Thomson, with advice of the capture of feveral French veffels off the coast of Ireland. They had on board a quantity of arms and stores for the use of the infurgents. The capture of these vessels at the present moment was extremely fortunate, and the vigilance of our cruizers deserves every praise.

THE TOULON EXPEDITION. Portugal are ordered to the East Indies with Commodore Blanket's squadron, Government having some fears that Buonaparte's object is Hindoltan. It is moreover faid, that shipping are taken up here to carry out a farther reinforcement of fix regiments to the British fettlements in India; and that a squadron has been sent from the Cape of Good Hope, to cruize between the eastern coast of Africa and the two French islands .-All this precaution may be very proper. Before, how-ever, we begin an enquiry into the freculation of ruin-ing the British possessions in India, we are much inclined to look at another reason for the French expedi-

The Great Nation has been worked up to fuch a pitch, about the expedition to England, that fome other object became necessary to be held up as foon as that failed. The glory of the present undertaking, and the plunder which it may be fur posed to afford, are well adapted to the purpole of amusing a still-giddy and vain-glorious people. Besides this, there is also to be considered, that the manner of disposing of the troops when peace on the Continent should be established has long been reckoned one of the most difficult things to be accomplished. Now the expedition in question has begun by taking off the most ambitious of the officers and the flower of the army; it holds up also, should it succeed, an object to foldiers that is far more capitivating than the lands of the clergy and emigrants. wealth comes from Asia, and therefore, like the Bank of Amsterdam, or the Bank of London, they are objects of envy to Republicans. If the expedition fucceeds, the numbers who will return to France will but small; and if it does not succeed, they will be equally fo: thus viewing the matter on which fide they may, the rulers of France liberate themselves from a diffreshing dilemma, and that as usual at the expence of the lives of those who embarrass them.

Arrived this day the Spy floop of war from Plymouth. She brings the unpleasant intelligence of the capture of the Prince Adolphus packet, with the mail from Lilbon. We have just evacuated Port-au-Prince and St

The King's baker at Port-au-Prince, a Frenchman, who had the contract, or rather bilked the bread for the army, the very day before the evacuation took place, had the diabolical intention of poisoning with arfenic the whole of that which was for the immediac use of the garrison. It being laid out iffuing, a dog providentially was observed to pick up the scraps; he was feized with violent convulsion, and instantly died, which happily led to the discovery. The villain was taken up, confessed the crime, and declared his hatred to the English was such, he could not help it, and that it was his view to have destroyed by this means the whole British force in the garrison. OFFICIAL ACCOUNTS. DUBLIN-CASTLE, JUNE 27. 1708.

Extract of a letter received this day by Lord Viscount CASTLE REAGH, from M jor General Sir CHARLES ASGILE, Bart.

MY LORD, Kilkenny, June 26. 1798. Fearing the confequences that might refult from allowing the rebels who fled from Wexford, to remain any length of time in this county, I preferred attacking them with the troops I already had, to waiting till a reinforcement arrived. My force amounted to eleven hundred men. The rebels confifted of about five thou-

I attacked them this morning at fix o'clock, in their polition on Kilconnel Hill, near Gore's Bridge, and foon defeated them. Their Chief, MURPHY, a Prieft, upwards of one thousand men were killed. Tea pieces of cannon, two fwivels, their colours, and quantities of ammunition, arms, cattle, &c. were taken; and I have the pleasure to add, that some soldiers who were made prisoners the day before, and doomed to suffer death, were fortunately released by our troops.

Our loss confisted of only seven men killed and wounded. The remainder of the rebels were purfued into the county of Wexford, where they dispersed in different directions.

I feel particularly obliged to Major MATHEWS, of the Downshire militia, who, at a short notice, and with great alacrity, marched with 400 men of his regiment, and Captain Poole's and the yeomanry corps of Mary-burgh, under the command of Captain Gore, to cooperate with me. Lord Lorrus, and Lieutenant Coonel Ram of the Wexford militia, Lieutenant Colonel Howard and Lieutenant Colonel RATCLIFFE of the Wicklow, Major DONALDSON of the 9th dragoons, who commanded the Cavalry, as well as all the officers and privates, are entitled to my thanks for their spirited exertions. Nor can I withhold the praise which is so justly due to all the yeomanry corps employed on this occasion; and I also beg leave to mention my Aid decamp, Captain OGLE, and Lieutenant HIGGINS, of the 9th dragoons, who has acted as my Brigade Ma-jor. I have the honour to be,

Tuesday Lord Chief Justice Lord Carleton, Baron George, Justices CROOKSHANK, CHAMBERLAIN, and Day, having taken their feats, Grand Juries for the city and county of Dublin were fworn in.

Lord CARLETON in a neat and brief charge recapi tulated the nature of their duty-adverted to the unprecedented flate of the times, and exhorted them to charge their minds from prejudice in the progress of their inquiries, and to let no bias which human infirmities might induce, from too great zeal or too great a-larm, warp them from a cool dispassionate investigation of the accufations to be fubmitted to them.

Some time elapsed, when Mr Norron, foreman of the City Grand Jury, came down with bills found.
Mr Samuel Nellson, of Belfaft, charged with High Treason, was brought into the dock, and being told that the Grand Jury had found a bill of indictment

Mr Bond then asked if from this day they might be

" Information having been received that the rebels were in great force at the Seven Churches, Lord POWERSCOURT, with a party of cavalry and infantry, from this town, &c. proceeded to Roundwood, to meet with a pretty ftrong party from Newton Mt. Kennedy, under the command of Lieut. M'LAREN of the Reay fencibles; the whole having proceeded towards the place, the advanced guard was attacked, but on the approach of the division, the rebels fled, leaving behind them upwards of fifty dead bullocks, and great quantities of hydes, &c. It appeared that the farm-houses were occupied as barracks.

"It was part of this body that Lieut. M'LAREN engaged and defeated on the 19th, at Ballinarush, as

On Thursday General Sir CHARLES ASGILL returned to Kilkenny, with part of the forces which occupied the pass of Scallagh, between Mount-Leinster and Black Stairs. We are informed that feveral bodies of rebels, endeavouring to escape, were intercepted—all of whom were either put to the sword or driven back into the co. Wexford.

BELFAST, June 29.

TRIAL OF JAMES DICKEY, FOR HIGH TREASON (Continued from our laft.)

Yesterday at one o'clock the Court again met to proceed in the trial of James Dickey, when the prisoner was found to be such intoxicated, and the Court adjourned till five o'clock.

It being suspected that the prisoner had taken poison, an emetic was administered to him in the prison, which brought him to a flate of recollection.

At five o'clock the Court refumed its fitting.
Christopher M'Corry fwprn.—Knows Dickey; informs the Court he was made prisoner with many others, at Randalstown, by the rebels, on Thursday the 8th instant; that Dickey came to him when he was confined, and faid to Shields, another prisoner, belonging to the Toome yeomanry, "When I was your prisoner, I think you did not treat me well; but now you are my prisoner, I'll not revenge it on you, but

Q. By the prisoner .- Were you present when Shields was made prisoner? A. I was.

Q. Did I make him prisoner, or was I there? A. Did not see you.

Here the proclamation was produced, issued by the Lord Lieutenant and Privy Council on the 24th ult. for martial law; and the evidence was closed.

The Proclamation was read by the Judge Advocate, and given to the prisoner, who perused it attentively, and said, there was a Notice issued by General Nugent lately, which he had seen in the Belfast News-Letter, and requested he might send for the paper, to read it to the Court: He did so, and read the Notice of General Nugeer, dated 24th instant, offering protection to fuch people as returned to their homes, to follow their usual occupations; the leaders only were exempted from that lenity. Prisoner observed, that none of the evidence went to convict him of being a leader, and that he thought he ought to benefit by that circumstance.

The President observed to the prisoner, that his case did not come under the meaning of the notice, and defired him to proceed in his defence.

The prisoner declined having Jamieson examined, and ultimately said he would make no defence at all. He was then remanded to prison, and the Court was cleared to deliberate on the fentence.

Being found guilty by the Court, he was fentenced to be hanged, and his head cut off and placed on the Market-house.

This fentence being approved of by General Nugent, he was brought from prison about eight o'clock in the evening, to the place of execution, where he fpent some time in conversation. The Rev. Mr Kelburne attend-ed and prayed, which he listened to with sceming indif-About nine o'clock, he mounted a tempoerence. About nine o'clock, he mounted a tempo-rary feaffolding, erected at the Market-house; when he asked for a drink of water, which having got, he requested his body would be given to his friends; the executioner then attempted to cover his face with a handkerchief, which the prisoner would not allow, and in a few moments after, he was launched into eternity. After hanging some time, he was taken down, and his head fevered from his body, which the executioner holding up in his hand, exclaimed "This is the head of a traitor;" it was then affixed to a pike, and placed on the Market-house. This unfortunate man was in the vigour of his youth was bred an attorney, and had moderate practice.—He appeared very infentible to his awful fituation.

A Court Martial is now fitting on JOHN STOREY,

The intelligence received from Ireland affords good ground to hope, that the rebellion there is now termi-nated. The official dispatches which will be found in this paper, show, that the infurgents which escaped from Wexford, have been completely defeated by Sir CHAR. Ascille, that their artillery, ammunition, &c. have been taken, and the banditti feattered in all directions, so that it is not expected they will have the temerity to affemble again in any great body.

It deferves particular notice, and is a tribute of respect justly due to the regular forces and militia reginents of Ireland, that although they have been befet by numbers of traitors, who, for a long time least, have been studying to seduce them from their allegiance, yet during the whole of this rebellion, not a single man belonging to these corps has deserted his duty. the contrary, wherever they were called into fervice, they have evinced the firmelt loyalty, and steady bravery, enduring the hardest duty with the greatest cheerfulness and most undaunted courage.

Saturday, the Ross-shire Fencibles, commanded by Major MACKENZIE, arrived at Glasgow barracks from Greenock.

On Thursday last, the young men balloted from the tia, marched from Paisley to Ayr, to be there embodied with those of that county. They were above an hundred in number, handsome young fellows, and all in high spirits. A young lad from the neighbouring parish of Kilbarchan, whose brother had been returned, came forward, and infifted on being allowed to accompany his brother as a Volunteer; but Mr FULTON of Hartfield, the Deputy Lieutenant, very properly advi-fed him to wait a few days, when he would be taken in as a fublitute, and thereby receive the ordinary bounty money, which his generous zeal and affection fo well entitled him to.

We understand that four additional companies of Volunteers are about to be raised in Paisley.

TARBRAX RACES-COUNTY OF FORFAR.

On the 28th June, the following races were run at Tarbrax.

They were the first races held here, on occasion of a new annual fair, instituted by Colonel Formennous and of Pourie:

First Race—For a Cavalry Saddle and Bridle, value Three Pounds. A race of three hears a mile out and in, won by Geo. Smith of Segieden, riding his chefinat mare Swift, bred on the barony, against William Fleming, who rode his own chefinat gelding, and Rabert Stroke, who rode his bay mare.

This race was concluded at one heat, Swift having distanced the other two.

the other two.

Second Race—A Saddle and Bridle, one heat, wen by John Smith, riding a brown mare of his own, sgainft — Wilson, riding his own brown gelding.

Third Race—For a Whip and pair of Spurs—won by—Chrichton of Panbride, riding his own chefuut horfe. Thio.

This race afforded excellent sport; some of the Gentlemen in the field having obligingly presented themselves as candidates for the prize, which was by this means very warmly contended for.

The culture of a most useful vegetable, altogether unknown in England till within these two years, is at length brought to the utmost perfection, in and near Bristol. This is the Anjou cabbage, perhaps the snost prositable and useful luguminous plant that can be raised. The seed of this truly valuable plant was supplied by a French Emigrant. This cabbage is a most excellent table vegetable, and is so tender, that it is deesed in three or sour minutes besiding.

by a French Emigrant. This cabbage is a most excellent table vegetable, and is so tender, that it is dressed in three or four minutes boiling. It is a most excellent food for cattle, which seed upon it greedily, and it has the valuable property of occasioning cows to yield abundance of milk, at the same time preserving them from declining in sless. In rapidity of growth, its great bulk, and the little culture it requires, this cabbage exceeds all other of the Brassica species.—The stalk of this cabbage, which is commonly as thick as a man's leg, is used, which is commonly as thick as a man's leg, is used, which is commonly as thick as a man's leg, is used, which is commonly as thick as a man's leg, is used, which is commonly as thick as a man's leg, is used, which is commonly as thick as a man's leg, is used, which is common saying in Anjou, of which part of France it is a native, that every cabbage was worth (before the late and it was a common saying in Anjou, of which part of France it is a native, that every cabbage was worth (before the late and it was a common saying in Anjou, of which part of France it is a native, that every cabbage was worth (before the late and it was a common saying in Anjou, of which part of France it is a native, that every cabbage was worth (before the late of late and it was a common saying in Anjou, of which part of France it is a native, that every cabbage was worth (before the late of Internation in the value of money there), five sols (two pence half-penny) each. Though this plant is at the prefet day scarcely known at Paris, yet at Anjou, Poictou, and Brittany (but particularly in the former province), the farmers are bound by their leases to plant a certain number of them, in proportion to the extent of land they occupy, and to leave a certain number standing when they quit their farms.

COURT OF KING'S BENCH, MAY IL.

This cause, which came on to be tried before Lord Kenyon at the sittings after last term, was an action brought by Mr. Beckford, author of a book called "Thoughts on Hunting," against the defendant, a bookseller; for publishing the same without his privity or consent. It appeared on the trial that the book was not entered at Stationer's Hall, nor was the plaintist aname prefixed to it. The jury found a verdict for the plaintist, subject to the opinion of the Court upon the point of law, whether, under these circumstances, the plaintist could maintain an action.

The counsel on the part of the desendant contended to-day, that the plaintist was not entitled to recover; and they founded their argument principally upon the case of Donaldson v. Becket; which was decided upon an appeal in the House of Lords, in which the judges were divided in opinion, being six against five. It was further contended, that the statutes which had been made upon the subject had taken away the rights which were vested in authors by the common law. The statutes imposed certain sines and penalties of one penny per sheet upon all persons pirating works, for all works to the informer; but they required, on the other hand, that the work should have been entered at Stationer's Hall; but in the present case the work was not entered, nor was the author's name prefixed to it.

Lord Kenyon said, there was nothing that could be more defirable to a seeling mind, than that the emoluments arising from all works should be secured to the authors, because it operated as an encouragement to genius and invention, exclusive of its being sounded in justice. His Lordship said, it was not necessary for him to wade through all the sautes that related to this question, and which the Legislature had found necessary to enact from time to time, as questions arose. There was no point more clear, than that there could be no right, withouts a temedy. It was not necessary for him to eater into a discussion upon the case of Dunaldson and Becket. It was sufficient to co the law was, as now eltablished, and whether the cam-of the plaintiff was confiftent with it.—The statute of the 17th Geo. IH. secured the rights of authors for 14 years, and inflished certain penalties in case of a violation of the statute, and required that the work should be entered at Stationer's Hall. But these pe-palties were given to the common informer, and could natics were given to the common informer, and could not affect the civil rights of the author; therefore the entering the work a Stationer's Hall was only necessary for the recovery of the penalties, but could not be necessary when the civil rights only of an author were in question. Upon these grounds, his Lordhip was of opinion that the verdict for the plaintist ought to stand. The other judges concurred in the same opinion.

This we were fully able to do, our God having kept two Furopeans for the purpose, the others having gone to Europe; one of these, whose name is Peter, had left the Datalius the other name and Andrew was call sway in the Matilalius the other name and andrew was call sway in the Matilalius the other name and and the sum of the sum of the purpose. Europe; one of these, whose name is Peter, nau the Matildaus, the other named Andrew, was cast away in the Matilda, and had been five years on the island—both could talk the language fluently. Our reasons for coming were no fooner made known to Pomaree, than he said we should not only have the house, which is a hundred seet by forty, but that all Matavia should be given to the English, which was accordingly done to the profit formal manner.

*After having thus fucceeded far beyond our expectations, it is now necessary that I should acquaint you, that sometime before we made the land, the Missionaries had divided in the following manner; eighteen for Otaheite, besides the women and children; ten for the Priendly Islands; and two for the Marquesas; this being the case, we had no time to space; therefore, as foon as I saw them in their commedions house, we failed for Eimeo, with a view to get the ship ready, but more particularly to see how the natives would beliave during the absence of the ship. After five days we returned, found them fall well, the natives having treated them with the utmost kindness. Having no time to space, we made all fail for the Friendly Islands; this was the 26th of March; the st of April made Palmerston Islands; and on the 9th, Tongatahoo, the next day we anchored about the place Captain Cook lay, according to his bearings. The anchor was no sooner gone, than the ship was furrounded with canoes, and a number of Chess came on board, who informed us that two Europeans were on the Island, and to our great joy, they soon after wards made their appearance, but of all the men we ever saw, these were certainly the most wicked looking sellows; and they soon gave us proof they were as bad as they appeared to be; " After having thus fucceeded far beyond our expectation these were certainly the most wicked souring relicans; and they foon gave us proof they were as bad as they appeared to be; one of them was an irifiman, named John Kennelly; the other, Benjamin Ambler of London. They told a strange story respecting their coming to these islands; but this was a matter of the coming to the standard of the coming to the ther, Benjamin Ambler of London. They told a strange story respecting their coming to these islands; but this was a matter of little consequence to us, sirmly believing that the Lord had seat them as our interpreters; for though we had provided, as we thought, sufficient instruments for the purpose, by bringing Peter and two Otaheitans with us, we should have been much at a loss, the language differing so much, that they could not understand one word in ten: but these two men, Ambler and Kennelly, who had only been thirteen months on the island, could talk the language well. After some time our business was partly told them; they readily agreed to give all the affistance in their power. After giving them and the Chiess present, they all went on shore, highly gratified apparently. Very early the next morning, we were surrounded with a prodigious number of single canoes, besides ten or twelve large double ones. From the peaceable manner they left us the night before we had not the least suspice, until the two suropeans came and told us, they intended to take the ssip. This, you may easily conceive, slarmed us much. We got the people to their quarters as privately as possible. After gating thus ready, we see such as a survey as possible. After gating thus ready, we see single the surrounder of the single ones sollowed; whether their intention was really to attack us we know not—but it was very alarming to see so many canoes and people round the vessel, prefenting their clubs and spears for sale, which might in a moment be turned agains us.

"Our fears in a great measure being done away, Ambler

"Our fears in a great measure being done away, Ambler pointed out 4Chiefs, which he said were the only ones we need pointed out 4Chiefs, which he faid were the only ones we need care for. Tho Mamoe, the prefent king, was then at the point of death, and his fon Tugahowe the leaft of the four, would certainly furceed his father; for though it was not his by right, was actually the case; he therefore would recommend the Missionaries being placed under his care; after talking with them on the subject, they readily agreed to go. After a most folenin feason in prayer, fix of them went with the Chief and Ambler, but not before they promised they should want for nothing. After receiving presents, they all went on shore before dark, and all the canoes left us. The next morning we weigh. lark, and all the canoes left us. The next morning we weigh ed, and run further our, that we might have plenty of room in case of an attack. About noon, two of the Missionaries returned, with the pleasing intelligence that the natives did not attempt to steal, but treated them with the greatest respect; we then loaded the canoes with the remainder of their things, and aded the canoes with the remainder of their th with fuch flores as they would want.

On the 23d May we discovered two islands, which we endeavoured to land upon; but the natives, from their holdise disposition prevented us. On the 4th of June made the island of Christiana, and the next day anchored in Resolution Bay, after a long disagreeable passage of fifty days. Refolution Bay, after a long difagreeable passage of fifty days We no sooner arrived, than we were visited by many of the natives, and amongst them the Chief, whom, after a few visits we gave to understand that the two Missionaries were to stay with him. On hearing this, he could not contain himself, but jumped about the cabin for joy. He said, they should have a house, and that they should never want while he had to give—which we have reason to believe will be the case.

which we have reason to believe will be the case.

" Having now resisted our rigging, which was in a bad state, we took an affectionate leave of each other, and sailed for Otaheite the 27th of June. We arrived in Matavia the 6th of July, when I sound them all well in health, with one more in number than I left, Mrs Henry being delivered of a sing girl.

" Having now completed our business, we took leave of our dear friends, and the kind natives, the 4th of August, touched at Hushine, which was in adreadful state, owing to their wars; and on the 18th of August, anchored off Tongataboo, nearly is our old birth, where we were visited by our dear people, who informed us they were all well, (except one) and how the Lord had preserved them from the machinations of their countrymen, who had done all in their power to make the poor heathens destroy them, and that some of them had separated with a view to counteract their villanous plots. During my stay, a view to counteract their villapous plots. During my flay Mess. Buchanan and Galton went to live with another Chief which, I true, will not only be the means of gaining their af-fections, but will likewife facilitate the knowledge of the lan-guage, which is of the greatest importance. After doing every fections, but win income required the knowledge of the lan-guage, which is of the greatest importance. After doing every thing in our power for them with the Chiefs, and dividing the articles, we parted, with many tears on both sides.

"We found, on our arrival at Macao, which was the 21st
